Watch your kilns around water!

Summer is definitely here and with the high temps comes monsoon season. When storm clouds are on the horizon, make sure to take steps to protect your kiln if it is outside. Remember, electricity and water do not mix so keep your kiln dry. Cover the kiln with a tarp (as long as it is not hot) to keep rain off of the control box and the bricks. If your kiln does get wet, DO NOT FIRE IT! You run the risk of damaging the kiln and yourself. Dry the kiln for a week or two before trying to fire it again. Be safe and try to stay cool!
