Flex Slider III

Flex Sliders!

Three flexible sliders allow for trimming hand built, asymmetrical and plain old wonky pots on the Giffin Grip!

It is getting to that time of year when firing is just not much fun. If you have a newer Skutt kiln or have recently replaced the control panel on your kiln, you may get an error message of "ERbd" if your kiln gets overheated during the firing. This message lets you know that the temperature of the panel exceeds the safe operating temperature and the kiln has shut itself off. This can be a maddening error message when you need to get things done and no one wants to repeat firings in the heat of summer. The message is designed to protect the control panel on the kiln which is the single most expensive part on your kiln. Repeating a firing costs much less than a new panel, so the kiln is just looking out for your wallet. You can reduce the chances of getting this error message by placing a small electric fan blowing across the control panel to remove excess heat and keep your panel cooled.
